3	Vladimir Yevgenievich CHUROV	Chairman, Central Electoral Commission of the Russian Federation	Central Electoral Commission of the Russian Federation	March 17, 1953	Leningrad (St. Petersburg), Russia	Responsible for violations of election rights of Russian citizens and of Russian and international election monitors. Oversaw the organization and conduct, and certified the results of the 2007 and 2011 State Duma elections and of 2008 and 2012 presidential elections that were judged by the OSCE and the Council of Europe to have violated the standards of democratic elections and, in the case of the 2007 State Duma election, to have been characterized by "harassment of opposition candidates, detentions, confiscation of election material, threats against voters." Introduced "unprecedented restrictions" on OSCE observers during the 2007 State Duma election, rendering them "unable to deliver [their] mandate." Refused to act in response to the mass confiscations by police of campaign materials of the opposition Union of Right Forces party during the 2007 State Duma election campaign; the confiscations have later been ruled illegal by the courts. Personally banned television channels from airing campaign commercials by the opposition parties A Just Russia, Yabloko, and the Liberal Democratic Party of Russia during the 2011 State Duma election campaign. Personally initiated a prosecutorial investigation of the independent poll-monitoring organization GOLOS in advance of the 2011 State Duma election. Publicly threatened election monitors who had uncovered mass fraud in the June 2012 municipal election in Kasimov, declaring that "the names of the monitors are known to the Central Electoral Commission." Created an atmosphere of impunity for violators of the election rights of Russian citizens and of Russian and international election monitors by repeatedly refusing to take action against them. Sources: Russian Duma elections 'not held on a level playing field', say parliamentary observers Council of Europe Press Release – 867(2007) https://wcd.coe.int/ViewDoc.jsp?id=1221469&Site=DC ODIHR unable to observe Russian Duma elections OSCE Press Release, 11/16/2007 http://www.osce.org/odihr/elections/49175 Court found confiscation of SPS newspaper print-run to be illegal

9	Mikhail Yurievich LESIN	Minister of Press, Television and Radio Broadcasting and Mass Media of the Russian	Ministry of Press, Television and Radio Broadcasting and Mass Media of the	July 11, 1958	Moscow, Russia	Personally threatened the then-owner of NTV television, Vladimir Gusinskiy, while Gusinskiy was being held at Butyrskaya Prison in Moscow,

		Federation (1999–2004)	Russian Federation			demanding that he transfer control of his media outlets (which had been critical of the government) to the state-owned company Gazprom in return for dropping the charges. Co-signed Annex 6 of the 20 July 2000 agreement that provided for the termination of Gusinskiy's criminal prosecution in return for the transfer of NTV shares. The European Court of Human Rights has unanimously held that the arrest of Gusinskiy, who was remanded in custody before being charged, was in violation of Article 5 (right to liberty and security) and Article 18 (limitation on use of restrictions on rights), taken in conjunction with Article 5, of the Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms. The Court also found that "the facts that Gazprom asked the applicant to sign the July agreement when he was in prison, that a State minister [Lesin] endorsed such an agreement with his signature and that a State investigating officer later implemented that agreement by dropping the charges strongly suggest that the applicant's prosecution was used to intimidate him." Sources: European Court of Human Rights CASE OF GUSINSKIY v.
